the fact that the "new" and "old" are not mutually exclusive. The "new" is not a replacement of the "old," but a continuation and evolution of it. The "old" is not a relic of the past, but a living tradition that shapes the present and future. The "new" is not a rejection of the "old," but a reinterpretation of it in light of contemporary challenges and opportunities. The "old" is not a static entity, but a dynamic process that adapts to change. The "new" is not a fixed point, but a path that leads to a better future. The "old" and the "new" are two sides of the same coin, and they are both essential for the survival and flourishing of the human community.
